

Make your next dream public space project a reality.

With the challenges of city building becoming more complex, and the many, compounding crises facing Canada today, the need for a cross-sector approach has never been more important.

Evergreen's Centre for Better Public Spaces brings together experts from the public, private, and community sectors to collaborate with local city builders and placemakers, creating more inclusive and green public spaces across Canada.

Tap into a growing network of experts

Keep your public space project moving by making the right connections at the right times with cross-sector experts. From the ideation stage to creating a project plan to government or community engagement, every step benefits from collaboration and diverse insights that enhance the project's impact.

Work collaboratively at Evergreen Brick Works

Experience a unique twist on the coworking space model, meeting rooms, and event spaces, all shared with community builders and other public space practitioners.

Evergreen's Centre for Better Public Spaces

With over three decades of experience in urban innovation, Evergreen has transformed public spaces across Canada. The Centre continues this legacy by serving as a catalyst for new ideas, partnerships, and projects that reimagine public spaces as inclusive, vibrant places where communities can thrive.

Let's build better cities, together.
